DISTRICT OF MINNESOTA

WENDY BROWN-HASAJ, individually and on behalf others similarly situated,

Plaintiff,

V.

BEST BUY STORES, L.P. d/b/a GEEK
SQUAD,

Defendant.

CASE NO._____

CLASS ACTION

JURY TRIAL DEMANDED

CLASS ACTION COMPLAINT

Plaintiff, WENDY BROWN-HASAJ, individually and on behalf of others similarly situated, alleges on personal knowledge, investigation of her counsel, and on information and belief as follows:

NATURE OF ACTION

1. This case involves activities conducted by Defendant Best Buy Stores, L.P. (hereinafter, “Geek Squad” or “Defendant”) in contacting individuals believed to be its customers through use of automated calls and prerecorded messages in violation of the Telephone Consumer Protection Act, 47 U.S.C. § 227 et seq., and the Federal Communications Commission (“FCC” or “Commission”) rules promulgated thereunder, 47 C.F.R. § 64.1200 (hereinafter referred to as the “TCPA”).

2. Defendant violated the TCPA by making calls to Plaintiff and Class Members using an “automatic telephone dialing system” and/or an “artificial or prerecorded voice” as described in 47 U.S.C. § 227(b)(1), without Plaintiff’s and Class Members’ prior express consent within the meaning of the TCPA.

3. Plaintiff therefore brings this action for injunctive relief and statutory damages to hold Defendant accountable for its illegal activities in utilizing automatically dialed calls to contact individuals it presumably (but wrongfully) believed to be customers.

JURISDICTION AND VENUE

4. This matter in controversy exceeds $5,000,000, as each member of the proposed Class of thousands is entitled to up to $1,500.00 in statutory damages for each call that has violated the TCPA. Accordingly, this Court has jurisdiction pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1332(d)(2). Further, Plaintiff alleges a national class, which will result in at least one Class member belonging to a different state. Therefore, both elements of diversity jurisdiction under the Class Action Fairness Act of 2005 (“CAFA”) are present, and this Court has jurisdiction.

5. This Court also has federal question jurisdiction pursuant to 28 U.S.C. § 1331.

6. This Court has personal jurisdiction over Defendant because portions of the conduct at issue in this case occurred, among other locations, in Minnesota, and because Defendant is headquartered in this District.

7. Venue is proper because a substantial portion of the events complained of occurred in this District, and because Defendant resides and maintains its principal corporate address in this District.

PARTIES

8. Plaintiff Wendy Brown-Hasaj is, and at all times mentioned herein was, an individual citizen of the State of Maryland residing in the City of Middle River.

9. Defendant is a Minnesota corporation with its principal place of business in Richfield, Minnesota.

THE TELEPHONE CONSUMER PROTECTION ACT OF 1991 (TCPA), 47 U.S.C. § 227

10. In 1991, Congress enacted the TCPA¹ in response to a growing number of consumer complaints regarding certain telemarketing practices.

11. The TCPA regulates, among other things, the use of automated telephone equipment, or “autodialers” and artificial or prerecorded messages. Specifically, the plain language of section 227(b)(1)(A)(iii) prohibits the use of autodialers or prerecorded messages to make any call to a wireless number in the absence of an emergency or the prior express consent of the called party. The TCPA defines an “automatic telephone dialing system” as “equipment which has the capacity—(A) to store or produce telephone numbers to be called, using a random or sequential number generator; and (B) to dial such numbers.”²

12. This statutory language dictates that “the term ‘automatic telephone dialing system’ means equipment which has the capacity—(1) to store numbers to be called or (2) to produce numbers to be called, using a random or sequential number generator—and to dial such numbers automatically (even if the system must be turned on or triggered by a person).” Marks v. Crunch San Diego, LLC, 904 F.3d 1041, 1053 (9th Cir. 2018) (emphasis supplied).³

³ In the past, the FCC has held that this definition is satisfied when a dialing system has the capacity to call “a given set of numbers” or when “dialing equipment is paired with . . . a database of numbers.” In re Rules & Regulations Implementing the Telephone Consumer Protection Act of 1991, 18 FCC Rcd. 14,014, ¶ 133 (2003); see also In the Matter of Rules & Regulations Implementing the Tel. Consumer Prot. Act of 1991, 23 F.C.C. Rcd. 559, 566 (F.C.C. 2008) (rejecting argument that a dialing system “meets the definition of autodialer only when it randomly or sequentially generates telephone numbers, not when it dials numbers from customer telephone lists” and reasoning that “the teleservices industry had progressed to the point where dialing lists of numbers was far more cost effective”).

13. According to findings by the FCC, the agency Congress vested with authority to issue regulations implementing the TCPA, such calls are prohibited because, as Congress found, automated or prerecorded telephone calls are a greater nuisance and invasion of privacy than live solicitation calls, and such calls can be costly and inconvenient. The FCC also recognized that wireless customers are charged for incoming calls whether they pay in advance or after the minutes are used.⁴

14. The 2003 FCC order defined a predictive dialer as “an automated dialing system that uses a complex set of algorithms to automatically dial consumers’ telephone numbers in a manner that ‘predicts’ the time when a consumer will answer the phone and a telemarketer will be available to take the call.”⁵ The FCC concluded that “[t]he basic function of such equipment . . . [is] the capacity to dial numbers without human intervention.”⁶ A 2008 Declaratory Ruling “affirm[ed] that a predictive dialer constitutes an automatic telephone dialing system and is subject to the TCPA’s restrictions on the use of autodialers.”⁷ And in yet another order issued in 2012, the FCC again reiterated that the TCPA’s definition of an ATDS “covers any equipment that has the specified capacity to generate numbers and dial them without human intervention regardless of whether the numbers called are randomly or sequentially generated or come from calling lists.”⁸

⁷ In the Matter of Rules and Regulations Implementing the Telephone Consumer Protection Act of 1991 (“2008 FCC Declaratory Ruling”), 23 F.C.C.R. 559, 23 FCC Rcd. 559, 43 Communications Reg. (P&F) 877, 2008 WL 65485 (F.C.C.) (2008).

⁸ In the Matter of Rules & Regulations Implementing the Tel. Consumer Prot. Act of 1991, 27 FCC Rcd. 15391, 15399 (2012).

15. Further, courts have long held that a “called party” under the TCPA is the recipient of the call, not the party the caller was intending to reach.⁹

16. On January 4, 2008, the FCC released a Declaratory Ruling wherein it confirmed that autodialed and prerecorded message calls to a wireless number by a creditor (or on behalf of a creditor) are permitted only if the calls are made with the “prior express consent” of the called party.¹⁰ The FCC “emphasize[d] that prior express consent is deemed to be granted only if the wireless number was provided by the consumer to the creditor, and that such number was provided during the transaction that resulted in the debt owed.”¹¹

17. A single call using both a prerecorded voice and an autodialer constitutes two violations of the TCPA, even if both violations arose from the same call. See Lary v. Trinity Physician Fin. & Ins. Servs., 780 F.3d 1101 (11th Cir. 2015).

18. Under the TCPA and pursuant to the FCC’s January 2008 Declaratory Ruling, the burden is on Defendant to demonstrate that Plaintiff provided it with prior express consent within the meaning of the statute.¹²

FACTUAL ALLEGATIONS

19. Plaintiff is, and at all times mentioned herein was, a “person” as defined by 47 U.S.C. § 153(39).

20. Beginning at least in or around 2018, but possibly earlier, Plaintiff began receiving numerous autodialed calls on her cellular telephone ((410) XXX-8861) from Defendant.

⁹ See, e.g., Osorio v. State Farm Bank, F.S.B., 746 F.3d 1242, 1251 (11th Cir. 2014); Soppet v. Enhanced Recovery Co., LLC, 679 F.3d 637, 638-39 (7th Cir. 2012).

¹⁰ 2008 FCC Declaratory Ruling, 23 F.C.C.R. at 564-65 (¶ 10).

¹¹ Id.

¹² See FCC Declaratory Ruling, 23 F.C.C.R. at 565 (¶ 10).

21. When Plaintiff did not pick up the phone, Defendant left a prerecorded message on her voicemail informing Plaintiff that Defendant was calling in regards to an account owned by someone other than, and unknown to, Plaintiff.

22. There were at least two numbers that appeared in Plaintiff's caller ID for these calls: 800-433-5778 and 443-394-0620.

23. These numbers are associated with Defendant.

24. For example, when the "800" number is called, an automatic recording will answer, "Geek Squad."

25. Plaintiff believes Defendant called her cellular telephone number from the aforementioned numbers on at least ten (10) different occasions throughout 2018.

26. Defendant's calls were not intended for Plaintiff. Rather, Defendant placed its calls in an effort to reach someone other than, and unknown to, Plaintiff named "Miriam Warnick".

27. Plaintiff answered at least three of Defendant's calls.

28. Each time, Plaintiff informed Defendant that she was not "Miriam Warnick" and that Defendant should stop calling.

29. Plaintiff also called a local Geek Squad store in Maryland to tell it to stop calling.

30. Despite her requests, Defendant's calls continued.

31. In receiving unwanted and unsolicited calls on her cellular telephone, Plaintiff suffered concrete harm in the form of lost time spent fielding the unwanted calls and attempting to get Defendant to stop the calls, loss of use of her cellular telephone as the calls came in, and the invasion of privacy and intrusion upon her seclusion.

32. Upon information and good faith belief, and in light of the frequency, number, nature, and character of the calls at issue, telephone contact made by Geek Squad to Plaintiff on her cellular telephone occurred via an “automatic telephone dialing system,” as defined by 47 U.S.C. § 227(a)(1). To be sure, when Plaintiff answered the calls from Geek Squad, there was a long pause and then a clicking noise before one of Defendant’s representatives came on the line.

33. Upon information and good faith belief, and in light of the frequency, number, nature, and character of the calls at issue, Geek Squad placed its calls to Plaintiff’s cellular telephone number by using (i) an automated dialing system that uses a complex set of algorithms to automatically dial consumers’ telephone numbers in a manner that “predicts” the time when a consumer will answer the phone and a person will be available to take the call, or (ii) equipment that dials numbers and, when certain computer software is attached, also assists persons in predicting when a sales agent will be available to take calls, or (iii) hardware, that when paired with certain software, has the capacity to store or produce numbers and dial those numbers at random, in sequential order, or from a database of numbers, or (iv) hardware, software, or equipment that the FCC characterizes as a predictive dialer through the following, and any related, reports and orders, and declaratory rulings: In the Matter of Rules and Regulations Implementing the Telephone Consumer Protection Act of 1991, 17 FCC Rcd 17459, 17474 (September 18, 2002); In the Matter of Rules and Regulations Implementing the Telephone Consumer Protection Act of 1991, 18 FCC Rcd 14014, 14092-93 (July 3, 2003); In the Matter of Rules and Regulations Implementing the Telephone Consumer Protection Act of 1991, 23 FCC Rcd 559, 566 (Jan. 4, 2008).

34. Upon information and good faith belief, and in light of the frequency, number, nature, and character of the calls at issue, telephone contact made by Geek Squad to Plaintiff on her cellular telephone utilized an artificial or prerecorded voice as defined by 47 U.S.C. § 227(a)(1). To be sure, when Geek Squad left a message on Plaintiff's voicemail, it was a prerecorded message with a robotic voice informing Plaintiff the call was in regards to an account owned by someone other than, and unknown to, Plaintiff.

35. The telephone number on which Geek Squad contacted Plaintiff was assigned to a cellular telephone service as specified in 47 U.S.C. § 227(b)(1)(A)(iii).

36. Plaintiff did not provide her "prior express consent" allowing Geek Squad to place telephone calls to Plaintiff's cellular telephone utilizing prerecorded messages and an "automatic dialing system" within the meaning of 47 U.S.C. § 227(b)(1)(A).

37. Indeed, Plaintiff is not a customer and/or debtor of Geek Squad.

38. In fact, Geek Squad's representatives asked for someone other than Plaintiff—a person whom Plaintiff did not know and with whom Plaintiff had no connection whatsoever.

39. Plaintiff is not, nor was at the time of the calls in question, one of Defendant's customers.

40. Plaintiff does not have, nor did have at the time of the calls in question, a business relationship with Defendant.

41. Plaintiff affirmatively requested that Defendant stop calling her cellular telephone and explained to Defendant's representative that Defendant is calling the wrong number.

42. Defendant assured Plaintiff her cellular telephone number would be removed from Defendant's call list.

43. Nevertheless, Defendant continued to call Plaintiff on her cellular telephone.

44. The telephone calls made to Plaintiff's cellular telephone by Defendant were not "for emergency purposes" as described in 47 U.S.C. § 227(b)(1)(A).

45. The telephone calls to Plaintiff's cellular telephone made by Defendant, which utilized prerecorded messages and an "automatic telephone dialing system" for non-emergency purposes and in the absence of Plaintiff's prior express consent, violated 47 U.S.C. § 227(b)(1)(A).

CLASS ACTION ALLEGATIONS

46. Plaintiff brings this action on behalf of herself and on behalf of all other persons similarly situated ("the Class").

47. Plaintiff proposes the following Class definition, subject to amendment as appropriate:

All persons and entities throughout the United States (1) to whom Best Buy Stores, L.P. placed, or caused to be placed, a call directed to a number assigned to a cellular telephone service, but not assigned to the intended recipient of Best Buy Stores, L.P.'s calls, (3) by using an automatic telephone dialing system or an artificial or prerecorded voice, (4) from four years prior to the date of this complaint through and including the date of class certification.

Collectively, all these persons will be referred to as "Class members." Plaintiff represents, and is a member of, the Class. Excluded from the Class are Defendant and any entities in which Defendant has a controlling interest, Defendant's agents and employees, any Judge to whom this action is assigned, and any member of such Judge's staff and immediate family.

48. Upon information and belief, the members of the Class are so numerous that joinder of all of them is impracticable.

49. Plaintiff does not know the exact number of members in the Class, but on information and belief, the number of Class members at minimum is in the thousands.

50. The members of the class are ascertainable because the Class is defined by reference to objective criteria.

51. In addition, the members of the Class are identifiable in that, upon information and belief, their cellular telephone numbers, names and addresses can be identified in business records maintained by Defendant and by third parties.

52. Plaintiff's claims, and the claims of the members of the Class, originate from the same conduct, practice and procedure on the part of Defendant.

53. Plaintiff's claims are based on the same theories as are the claims of the members of the Class.

54. Plaintiff suffered the same injuries as the members of the Class.

55. Plaintiff and all members of the Class have been harmed by the acts of Defendant, including, but not limited to, the invasion of their privacy, annoyance, waste of time, depletion of their cellular phone battery, and the intrusion on their cellular telephone that occupied it from receiving legitimate communications.

56. This Class Action Complaint seeks injunctive relief and money damages.

57. The joinder of all Class members is impracticable due to the size and relatively modest value of each individual claim. The disposition of claims in a class action will provide substantial benefit to the parties and the judicial economy of the Court in avoiding a multiplicity of identical suits.

58. There are well defined, nearly identical, questions of law and fact affecting all Class members. The questions of law and fact involving the Class claims predominate over questions which may affect individual Class members. Those common questions of law and fact include, but are not limited to, the following:

- a. Whether non-emergency calls made to Plaintiff and Class members' cellular telephones used an automatic telephone dialing system as defined by the TCPA and/or an artificial or prerecorded voice;
- b. Whether such calls were made by Defendant;
- c. Whether Defendant can meet its burden of showing it obtained prior express consent (i.e., consent that is clearly and unmistakably stated) to make such calls to wrong or reassigned telephone numbers;
- d. Whether Defendant's conduct was knowing and/or willful;
- e. Whether Defendant is liable for damages, and the amount of such damages; and
- f. Whether Defendant should be enjoined from engaging in such conduct in the future.

59. As a person who received numerous and repeated telephone calls using prerecorded messages and an automatic telephone dialing system, without her prior express consent within the meaning of the TCPA, Plaintiff asserts claims that are typical of each Class member.

60. Plaintiff will fairly and adequately represent and protect the interests of the Class, and has no interests which are antagonistic to any member of the Class.

61. Plaintiff has retained counsel experienced in handling class action claims involving violations of federal and state consumer protection statutes, including claims under the TCPA.

62. A class action is the superior method for the fair and efficient adjudication of this controversy.

63. Class wide relief is essential to compel Defendant to comply with the TCPA. The interest of Class members in individually controlling the prosecution of separate claims against Defendant is small because the statutory damages in an individual action for the violation of the TCPA are relatively small.

64. Management of these claims is likely to present significantly fewer difficulties than are presented in many class actions because the calls at issue are all automated and the Class members did not provide prior express consent, as required under the statute, to authorize such calls to their cellular telephones.

65. Defendant has acted on grounds applicable to the Class, thereby making final injunctive relief and corresponding declaratory relief with respect to the Class as a whole appropriate.

66. Moreover, on information and belief, the TCPA violations complained of herein are substantially likely to continue in the future if an injunction is not entered.

76. Plaintiff and Class members are also entitled to and do seek injunctive relief prohibiting Defendant's violation of the TCPA in the future.

TRIAL BY JURY

77. Plaintiff is entitled to, and demands, a trial by jury.
